"I saw Mr. Nicoil and told him what Granger had told me, and I was assured that no such promises had ever been made by Mr. McClace or any one representing him, so far as Mr. Nicoil knew.

"I was greatly surprised, for Granger had been very positive in his statements to me. I apologized to Mr. Nicoil for troubling him about the matter and went away, and that was all that occurred at the interview.

"I saw Granger on my return and had another talk with him. I really don't know what to believe. Granger made a very strong point about getting back his wife and children. He declared over and over again that this promise had been made to him."

"Do you know where Granger is now?"

"Do you know where Granger is now?"
"Well. I don't think it would be very hard for me to find him if I wanted to see him." replied Lawyer Stillwell.
"Will you tell where he is?"
"No. I cannot do that."
Mr. Stillwell said he never promised to produce Granger before the Committee this morning, and that nothing had been said about his doing so. He was still acting as Granger's counsel.

Sutherland's Startling Confession.

"From my knowledge of the election." ANOTHER SMUGGLER CAUGHT

When the North German-Lloyd steamship Saale reached her dock at Hoboken this morning Albert Reinthaler, a cabin passenger tried to get off the dock with Sutherland's Startling Confession

"From my knowledge of the election of 1838, held at Gravesend, including the direct knowledge I had and the knowledge which came to me indirectly, sestimate the number of fictitious votes cast at that election in the Second Election District, to have been between eight and nine hundred; the total number of fictitious votes on that day east in all of the districts to have been between fourteen and fifteen hundred.

"The actual votes cast at that election were about 2,100 or 2,200 in number. The actual number of votes cast in the year 1832 at the election in Gravesend was 2,000 or 2,100; and there were cast in 1832 about 1,000 or 1,100 fictitious ballots. In both years the fictitious ballots cast were what is known as the straight Democratic ticket.

"In Gravesend the Democrats and Republicans were united. There has been practically no difference in Gravesend between Democrats and Republicans. In the elections of 1836, 1839, 1850 and 1831 the vote of Gravesend was cast for the Re-
